

How do I?

An occasional series

This week: PUT TITLE HERE

Introductory note – I modified this article to some extent prior to posting it on our CARC Website. Club Members might recognize my style and sense of humor. If the article captures your interest then the credit goes to Frank Mellott. If something I said rubs the wrong way then I take responsibility.

- Andy Forsyth

William Shakespeare, Herman Melville, Mark Twain, Sinclair Lewis, Upton Sinclair, Aldous Huxley, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Rachel Carlson, Kurt Vonnegut Jr., Barbara W. Tuchman, Anne Frank, Robert McCloskey, Elizabeth Guilfoile, Maya Angelou, Frank Mellott, You!.

If you would like to create content for the CARC website you can be in the company of those famous authors named above. All you need to do is open the Word doc, version of this article, erase all the material that Frank Mellott has written, and start typing your own manuscript. You may need to reformat the paragraph to Times New Roman 14. The header font is Staccato555 BT 18 point regular.

The article can be on any topic that has some kind of relationship to what we do as the Cumberland Amateur Radio Club. A lot of articles are Ham Radio related. Some articles are true “How do I...” and others are hopefully motivational soap box pieces. In the end, Andy Forsyth decides what gets posted into the website and he takes a pretty liberal perspective on what constitutes relevant material.

I try to liven-up the written article using photos from my own collection, or from the club website. Or in a few cases, I grab radio vendor photos off the web when they are not subject to Copyright.

I like to end each article with a tagline: Catch ya on the air! But feel free to add your own tagline. Remember Walter Cronkite on the CBS Nightly News? His tagline was: “And that’s the way it is.”

When I have said everything I set out to say, I save the article as a PDF file and email the file to Andy. This article will be sent as both a WORD compatible doc and a PDF.
